CSUF Dodgers Night

Cal State Fullerton Titans represented at Dodgers Stadium this past Friday, Sept. 6 for the first-ever CSUF Dodgers Night. Not only did Titans fill the stands at Dodgers Stadium, Titans also represented during the pre-game festivities. The ceremonial first pitch was thrown out by President Fram Virjee and caught by Titan/Dodger Justin Turner. Titan opera student Danielle Pribyl sang the evening's national anthem. CSUF Alumni Association President, Adam Koyanaki and Tuffy also took the field for pre-game. It was an incredible display of Titan pride as thousands of Titans wore their CSUF/LA hats proudly at the inaugural CSUF Dodgers Night hosted by your CSUF Alumni Association.

In May he graduated from Cal State Fullerton with a bachelor's in American Studies and minor in broadcasting. But over the summer he realized he was missing something. The students. The campus lifestyle. The cozy Titan Radio office tucked into the basement of Pollak Library.

Gilda Ortega

Civil engineering major Gilda Ortega had an opportunity this summer to create a fictional research project to build a pedestrian bridge in Mexicali. Ortega was among the Cal State Fullerton engineering students who studied at Centro de Enseñanza Técnica Y Superior Universidad in Ensenada, Mexico for a week in late July and teamed up with Mexican scholars to create and present engineering research projects based on real-world needs. Students also visited three different industries — two wineries and a water park — to learn about engineering projects and systems in Mexico. Through the program, engineering students get the opportunity to gain technical, linguistic and intercultural skills critical for today's workforce.
