#TitansGive | Day of Giving

Tomorrow is CSUF's third annual #TitansGive day of giving! Join us for this 24-hour giving marathon where every dollar makes an impact! Various matching challenges will be happening throughout the day, including our 67 alumni donor challenge. Will 67 alumni donors participate to activate matching funds? Support your favorite area of campus; the Alumni Association will be raising money for the student scholarship endowment. Titans, help us spread the word about this 24-hour giving day; together, we can make a long-lasting impact!

Show off your credentials with a digital badge

Adding a badge to your resume or LinkedIn profile helps you stand out to employers by showing the skills you have to offer. CSUF Extension & International Programs now offers a digital badge for completing the Advanced Manufacturing Engineering Certificate program! There's still time to register for classes. An engineering degree isn't required, but a strong interest or experience in manufacturing is a plus. The next class begins on March 7th!

Grant to Bolster Diversity in STEM, Fund Research on Materials That Contract When Heated

A cup of hot coffee in the morning may serve as a necessary pick-me-up, but for people with composite dental fillings, it also can be a source of tooth sensitivity. Research by Cal State Fullerton's Joya Cooley on negative thermal expansion materials — those which contract when heated — could help in such cases. Dr. Joya Cooley, Assistant Professor of Inorganic Chemistry, has received a National Science Foundation grant to conduct such research, along with recruiting and retaining students from historically excluded groups in STEM (science, technology, engineering and math). Cooley and her students also hope that their research on NTE materials can play a larger part in helping achieve social justice.
